CONNECTING THE DOTS – FROM SHARED VISION TO SHARED REALITY

How do you really know what you're seeing in a classroom, and how do you put what you see into practice? In this masterclass, "Connecting the Dots," we'll focus on the key aspects of classroom observations and student engagement. We will take a hands-on approach that will help you understand how to get the most of lesson observations and how to connect that with your own practice. We'll cover practical techniques to effectively understand student engagement and adjust your teaching targets accordingly. This session will also look at teacher identity - what does it mean for you to be an educator? By the end of the session, you'll have the tools to create a more engaging and responsive classroom environment, as well as a clearer outlook on your professional identity. Join us for a journey into connecting the dots between your teaching vision and reality.
